Joint Meeting of Board of Trade and Lions Club Honor J. R. Hill

The regular business of the Board of Trade proceeded following supper on Thursday evening. Les Parsons was unanimously elected to fill the position left vacant through the transfer of Mr. J. R. Hill to Calgary. Mr. E. Fabro gave particulars regarding the new entrance to the Kananaskis highway. The new highway entrance will start just to the east of the Little Chief Service Station and proceed north on the east side of the cemetery to link up with the Kananaskis road. It is understood that this road will be black topped. Other information was given that a good road to the airport west of Coleman will be built. There being no further outstanding business Mr. William Holyk, B. of T. President introduced Don Thornton district governor of the Lions Club, and Mr. Ed Howard, new bank manager replacing J. R. Hill. He then called on Mr. M. Dunford who gave a brief but inspiring address paying tribute to Lion Hill who had joined the Lion's Club in 1949, became Lion president for the years 1952, 1953 and again in 1956. He was a very strong community booster. Mr. R. Pattinson added further to the tribute already given in which he stated there are ways in which you get to know a friend. If you fish with him, curl with him and work with him. Mr. Pattinson stated he had done all three and that he believed that none could have done more for his community than Hollie Hill.

District governor, D. Thornton commended Mr. Hill for his Lion's work, his understanding of organization and his untiring efforts to the community as a whole. Mr. William Holyk spoke on behalf of the Board of Trade and his most sincere appreciation for the wonderful help that "Hollie" had given him. After seven years with the Board of Trade we share the loss no less than the Lion's Club and the community in general.

Mr. Holyk stated further that he hoped that he was not giving away the secret when he told the story of one of the many fine things that Hollie had done. He stated that approximately four or five months ago a family were informed by their doctor that their child who was suffering with cancer must be taken to Rochester Clinic at once. This was in the evening. Money was required. Hollie was informed and he immediately loaned the required amount interest free and to further make sure that this child was on the train for Rochester Hollie drove the family to Shelby, Montana and put them aboard a through train. This did not conclude the assistance rendered by Mr. Hill, he also, upon the return to Coleman drove them to Calgary and rendered many more services. So you can see now gentlemen why we will miss J. R. "Hollie" Hill very, very much.

Mr. Hill was presented by M. Dunford of the Lion's Club with a desk pen set suitably inscribed to Lion Hill from the Coleman Lion's Club.

Mr. Holyk on behalf of the Board of Trade presented Mr. Hill with a beautiful colored picture of Crow's Nest Mountain. The back of this picture was signed by all members present.

Mr. Hill thanked both organizations and stated this dinner and gifts came as a most unusual surprise inasmuch that this was one of the first occasions of this kind that he had not taken an active part. My transfer to Calgary came as a sudden shock. What my job will be there I do not know at present. I ask all of you my good friends to continue the fine support to the new manager as you have given to me. Coleman and its many memories will never be forgotten if such things are possible to forget. You may be assured that my many friends here in Coleman that at any time that I can give assistance you shall receive it.

Mr. Hill was given three rousing cheers and all assembled sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Meeting concluded with God Save the Queen.

Govt. Issues Prospecting Permits Blairmore Area

EDMONTON — (CP) — More than 105,000 acres in the Blairmore and Pincher Creek area of southwestern Alberta are covered in iron prospecting permits, minor department officials said today.

Tuesday, the provincial government approved the issuance of an iron prospecting permit to William Bird of Blairmore for 47,840 acres. The permit runs for one year.

Another permit approved Tuesday went to Rene Albert Diamond of Blairmore for 19,680 acres.

Earlier this year, a permit was granted to West Canadian Collieries Ltd. of Blairmore, for 38,267 acres for iron prospecting purposes.

Coleman Rodeo To Be Held July 7

It was decided at the Board of Trade meeting to hold the Rodeo again this year.

Full report in our next issue.

Family religion, fine as it can be made, is not enough in itself. A family religion, divorced from the church and lacking the full expression of Christian fellowship, could not be in any real sense completely Christian. The family needs the church as much as the church needs the family.

Former Coleman Boy Heads X-Ray Department

FOSS BOULTON

Coleman residents will be proud to learn of Foss Boulton's latest achievement in life. Foss, Coleman's War Ace of World War Two, now resides in Seattle with his family.

A highly important segment in any hospital is the X-ray machine department and this is certainly true in the West Settle General Hospital where one of the most complete hospital units is contained. Operating on a 24-hour basis the X-ray processed 334 in the month of January. When you consider each patient averages four X-rays it is understandable why the X-ray department is busy from morning till night. A normal day is from 7 a.m. till 11 p.m. with emergency service throughout the night.

Heading this department is Foss Boulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boulton of Coleman with Dr. H. Stewart as radiologist. The X-ray machine is a GE 200 M.A. Mexican. The system is designed so that within 10 minutes of taking fluoroscope the radiologist is checking the first plate.

The work is co-ordinated closely. As soon as the patient is on the table and the first picture is taken it is put in the developing solution for the print.

15 Tips to Aid Canada's Taxpayers

By this April 30, more than one out of five Canadians — about 3,500,000 — will pay one and a quarter billion dollars in income tax, it is reported in the new April issue of Liberty magazine.

To help Canadian tax payers file their tax returns, Liberty presents the following tips to help you reduce your income tax payments.

1. Be sure your charitable donations are made to an organization in Canada. Otherwise, they are not deductible. Keep your donation receipts.
2. Alimony payments are only deductible, if you have a judicial separation or divorce.
3. Other than for a few drugs, which must be prescribed, most medicines you pay for are not deductible. If, however, your medicine comes from a hospital, or a doctor, and is added to a patient's bill, its cost is deductible.
4. Be sure to obtain proof that travelling expenses were necessary to the business in order to gain or produce income within the meaning of the Income Tax Act. Expenses met while you're attending a convention, for instance, would probably be considered a personal or living expense, therefore taxable.
5. Be sure your medical payments are made to "qualified practitioners". The Act provides for a certain portion of medical expenses — provided they are paid to a medical practitioner, dentist or nurse qualified to practise.
6. It's more remunerative, under the Income Tax Act, to suffer loss of hearing than loss of sight. Costs for hearing-aids are deductible; for your eye glasses, they're not.
7. If you marry on December 31, remember any income your wife made that year does not affect your personal exemptions. You still receive a full, married man's exemption for that year.

Your costs when you obtain a loan of capital, with the exception of interest paid, are not deductible.

Costs incurred when you seek the aid of a chartered accountant to make out your income tax return, are deductible.

Don't take long, costly trips by ambulance, if you think the cost can be claimed as an exemption, it can't be.

Deductible medical expenses are only those which exceed 3% of your gross income. If you make $3,000 a year, you must pay tax on medical costs up to $90.

Deductions made for bad debts are only allowed, if they've been made while you're carrying on your business.

Employed tax-payers, whose members of approved pension plans, are allowed tax deductions on payments made to such plans. The same privilege, however, is not granted self-employed people.

If you pay dues to a recognized professional association, they are deductible.

Two Tanks Full?

TWO TANKS FULL? Yes, Two Tanks full, or 3224 or 25800 pints of blood were collected by the Calgary Sub Depot, Calgary, during 1955 for patients and to be made into useful blood products for the people of Alberta. Sixty-three mobile clinics were held, and at these an average of 250 donors attended. Calgary supplied 10,072 pints. Unfortunately five scheduled clinics were cancelled on short notice due to unusual bad weather, epidemics and a Binge and we are down in total over previous 1954 collection.

Story of blood is still among the dramatic events of 1955 in the lives of the many people who received transfusions of the life-giving fluid donated by generous donors.

More than 1 1/4 million square miles of Canada's forests are under organized protection against destruction by fire.

Blairmore Deanery Priests Given New Posts

Three priests of the Blairmore Deanery will be saying farewell this week to their parishioners and leaving for new posts in various parts of Alberta.

Rev. Father G. Labonte, OMI, parish priest of St. Michael's, Pincher Creek, for the past four years, has been appointed parish priest of St. Joachim's Church in Edmonton, succeeding Father G. Michaud, OMI, recently elected Provincial Superior of the Oblate Fathers in the provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan. Father Labonte has been an energetic and zealous pastor at Pincher and he will be missed by the priests of the district and by his many friends, both Catholic and non-Catholic.

Rev. Father W. Krewsky leaves St. Joseph's Church in Cowley to begin a new parish in Tillie, and surrounding missions, a territory which until now has been attached to the parish of Brooks. Father Krewsky has been in Cowley for about two and one half years. He will now take over a more exacting charge and it is anticipated he will do work for the diocese of Calgary.

TO COALDALE PARISH

Father Greg MacLellan leaves St. Theresa's Church, Cardston, to go to Coaldales St. Ambrose parish. Father MacLellan had a difficult work in Cardston to which he devoted himself with great zeal and his 13 months there have proven a great spiritual benefit to that parish.

Father Armand Lemire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Lemire of Cowley assumes his first parish when he takes charge of St. Theresa's Church in Cardston. Father Lemire has been assistant priest at Saint Anthony's in Drumheller since his ordination and has done excellent work in that area as there are numerous missions to attend.

It is a source of pride for the Blairmore Deanery, church officials say, that two of its priestly sons have returned to take up their ministry in their own home district — Father Denis Fleming at Coleman and Father Lemire at Cardston.

Car and Driver Licences Get Month Extension

A one month extension on 1955 driver licences and automobile registration plates was announced by Horace R. Clark, registrar of the licensing division.

The normal expiry date is March 31, but with the seasonal rush on licensing officials reaching record proportions the date has been set back to April 30.

The extension gives motorists one more month in which to obtain their 1956 plates and licences. May 1 is the deadline for installation of the new plates.

Experiments in which super-sonic sound will be used to determine the properties of wood are being planned by the Forest Products of Canada.

Dominion Day Celebration Planned By Blairmore Lions

Blairmore town council held its meeting Friday night when it was disclosed by Dino Pagnucco of the Blairmore Lions Club that the Lions were planning to revive the annual July 1 celebration which at one time had been Blairmore's big holiday event of the year.

Mr. Pagnucco said present plans call for a two or three day weekend of festivity including a field day of sports for youngsters, a golf tournament at the new Blairmore Golf and Country Club, a scout rally, dance, and a summer carnival. It had been suggested that the local arena be used for the carnival but council was not yet sure whether or not a concrete floor would be laid in the new centre this summer and that if plans were made for this work it would probably not be done in time for the affair.

However, council heartily endorsed the July 1 event and pledged the full support of the town.

Mr. Pagnucco, representing the Board of Trade, brought up the matter of the town building a picnic ground near the No. 3 highway for the convenience of tourists and local persons. He advised council the board would assist in building the ground, Council, which had discussed this matter last fall, felt that the spot would be very useful and several sites will be investigated, in order that the ground be built this spring.

GARDEN NOTES

Catalogues advise where plants or shrubs grow best

Humorists suggest that the pictures in the catalogues often excel the results in the garden. If this is so, the blame can often be laid at the door of the gardener, because he didn't study the catalogue well enough.

Practically all catalogues, in addition to giving specific planting instructions, indicate whether a particular plant or shrub is hardy or only semi-hardy in different geographic areas, whether it grows best in sun or shade; whether it likes heavy or light soil, or has a preference for wet or dry places in the garden.

With this information available there is no reason why the amateur gardener cannot arrange his plantings in such a way that they will grow to best advantage. He knows that he has put the right plants in the right places and proper attention and care throughout the growing season will bring satisfactory results.

Most from vegetables

A lot of gardeners have learned that the only way to get top quality in vegetables is to grow them at home. The reason is simple. Most vegetables, and especially things like peas, corn, beans, carrots and even spinach start to deteriorate within a few hours after they are picked. No matter how carefully we pack them, they soon start to lose some of their garden freshness. Because this is so, many people even with tiny gardens try to have a small plot for vegetables tucked away somewhere. And it is literally amazing how many good meals can be produced from a bit of land only a few yards each way.

Where the garden is a small one, we won't try to grow our winter's supply of potatoes, or very much of the bulky things like corn and squash. But even a 12 foot row of beans, spinach, carrots or beets will produce a lot. Most of these things can be grown in rows only a few inches apart and we can get more out of the plot by alternating rows of the bigger things like carrots, beets and beans with smaller things like lettuce, radish and onions. We can also have two crops, one early and one late, and we can spread out the sowings so that something fresh and new will always be coming along.

Add mystery

An interesting garden is like a winding lane, it should unfold on the visitor gradually. Even if space is limited to the standard urban back lot, it is possible with, perhaps a curving path, clumps of tall annuals or shrubbery to hide some interesting and intriguing corners and shady spots. Here we place a couple of chairs or a bench or a bit of wall or hedge.

But a curving path without any reason at all for the curve looks artificial. So we make that path wind around a tree, or a big clump of shrubbery. And every yard we proceed down that path there should be a different view, a flower bed or some other feature that cannot be completely seen from the back porch or the gate.

It is not difficult at all to add a bit of mystery, to keep some special corners almost hidden and with the amount of planting material we have available in Canada one can do wonders in creating a garden that is different from any other and reflects one's individuality.

Judge suggests marital subsidy and baby bonus

Magistrate Kenneth M. Langdon of Oakville, Ont., has suggested government subsidies of from $3,000 to $5,000 to young people who want to get married but can't because of financial difficulties.

The magistrate, a judge of the juvenile and family courts for Halton County, told the Oakville-Trafalgar-Bronte Family Service Bureau the subsidies could be made through chartered banks. They could be repaid at low interest rate as soon as the husband reached full earning power.

Couples expecting a baby, he suggested should be given a $100-a-month bonus after satisfying a means-test requirement. That would enable mothers to stay home and look after their families.

Oriental test
Young couples contemplating marriage should be required to take an orientation test which would indicate whether they are ready to accept the responsibilities of married life.

Unsatisfactory results, especially on the duties of parenthood should lead to denial of marriage licence for the time being.

Many couples "are attracted physically but they do not realize what a serious step they are about to take."

The marriage test, combined with guidance, would alleviate many common marriages problems.

CHECK ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT

Many fires in homes and business premises are caused by faulty electrical wiring or appliances. This is often due to wiring of installation being done by non-qualified people or the use of materials not up to the standards of the Canadian Standards Association. All appliances or equipment which meet the requirements of the CSA have been thoroughly tested for fire and shock safety and accordingly bear the CSA approval mark.

DOG-GONE TOOTH—It's a dog's life for Tille, pet of the Ernest Schoeders, of Asheville, N.C. She just had a tooth pulled. It's the first time that the frisky animal has been down in the mouth in all her 19 years. The rest of her canine crockery is still intact.

U.K. Health Service is levelling out

General practitioners in Britain are seeing more patients than before the start of the National Health Service and generally are doing more work for their patients. The distribution of doctors over the country as a whole has improved and a more reasonable balance has been struck between "over-doctored" and "under-doctored" areas.

These are some of the facts brought out in the report, published in London recently, of the committee of five, set up under the chairmanship of Cambridge economist C. W. Guillebaud to inquire into the working of Britain's National Health Service.

After two and a half years' consideration of the cost, efficiency and future of the Health Service, the committee found them to be working satisfactorily.

"We are strongly of the opinion that it would be altogether premature at the present time to propose any fundamental change in the structure of the National Health Service," says the report.

The Guillebaud committee's independent report, coming seven and a half years after the inception of the National Health scheme, states conclusively that there has been no lowering of service to patients by doctors in this period. The committee declares:

"What is most needed at the present time is the prospect of a period of stability in order that all the various authorities and representative bodies can think and plan ahead with the knowledge that they will be building on firm foundations."

The report states:

"Any charge that there has been widespread extravagance in the National Health Service, whether in respect of the spending of money or the use of manpower is not borne out by our evidence. Particularly significant is the fact that, allowing for a rise of nearly two percent in population and for changes in its age structure, the cost per head at constant prices was almost exactly the same for the 1953-54 period as for 1949-50."

Expressed as a proportion of the total national resources, the cost of the National Health Service (£430.5 million) in 1953-54 was 3.25 percent as compared with 3.75 percent in 1949-50. Fluctuations in costs over the coming years will depend upon many factors: levels of wages and prices, changes in medical techniques and incidence of disease, population changes and other social factors.

Man's best friend getting full share modern medical benefits

The next time you feel the need for sympathy, don't complain that you're living a dog's life. It might be better than your own, states a story by Watson Sims of Associated Press.

A dog's life, canine specialists agree, is getting better and longer all the time. Man's best friend is getting a full share of the benefits modern civilization has brought to man himself.

His life expectancy is up by about 50 percent. Vaccines and antibiotics have all but eliminated many of his diseases, and eased the effects of many once fatal infections.

New techniques in surgery are being applied on his behalf. He is getting better food and, on the whole, receiving better care both in sickness and in health.

But not all of these blessings are unshared. Like man, the dog is running into certain penalties that come with longer life. More and more, he is suffering ailments normally associated with old age.

And because he is living longer, his numbers are increasing far beyond the demand for dogs.

Longer life expectancy
Dr. Hadley Stephenson, professor of veterinary medicine at Cornell University, said recently the average life expectancy for a dog now is about 12 years.

"Many live longer than that," Dr. Stephenson told the Oklahoma Veterinary Medical Association. "There are 300 dogs in the country that I know which are 17 years old. The average dog used to live to be about seven or eight."

At least nine cities have written new subdivision regulations prohibiting alleys and replacing easements instead, a check showed.

Some cities, including Detroit, Mich., are encouraging property owners in older districts to eliminate alleys and are advising them on how to do it.

The society said most arguments against alleys stress that they are expensive and a nuisance to maintain. More often than not they are littered with trash and garbage and make excellent breeding places for rats.

But the society said alleys are sensible where lots face on a major thoroughfare or in apartment house districts.

WEEKLY
COMMENTMAN HAS
GODLIKE ATTRIBUTES

"God saw everything that He had made, and behold, it was very good." This verse from Genesis is one upon which we may well meditate at this time, when our thoughts are so much upon the life of His Son.

If we could see creation as God saw it, we, too, would know that it is very good. We see it, so often, marred by what man has done to himself, to his fellow men and even to the world in which he lives. With infinite capacity for building beautifully and well, man has been too often content to live in hells—spiritual or actual or to let others live there.

The writer of Genesis, with magnificent vision, faith, and daring, links the Creator with man, made in the image and likeness of God, with the capacity of being himself a maker, or creator.

"God made man in his own image." "Every house is builded by some man, but He that built all things is God." This linking of man with God is logical and sound, and it is the intelligent basis of all true religion.

It is a commonplace of our faith today. But surely it was an inspired man who first perceived and uttered it.

Let us remember that it is through the Jesus of the Cross—the Jesus of the Resurrection—that we may, each of us, regain a measure of worthiness for this unique linkage with the Creator.

G. HUTAPEA

Indonesian makes visit to Prairie
Publishers plant

G. Hutapea, Djakarta, Indonesia, representative of the Indonesian Department of Information, was an invited visitor at the plant of Prairie Publishers (Co-op) Limited recently.

In Regina during a cross-Canada junket to gather information on Canadian co-operatives, Mr. Hutapea said that when he heard the headquarters of what is believed to be the world's only co-operative publishing company was in Regina, he immediately requested a visit to the plant.

Mr. Hutapea expressed great interest when the service function of Prairie Publishers was explained to him by the manager, and learned that more than one hundred western Canadian weekly newspapers were serviced every week by a company whose shareholders are 87 weekly newspaper publishers.

The visitor took notes on the operation of each department and was especially interested in the company's electronic engraving machine which made a plastic engraving of his photograph in 10 minutes, while Mr. Hutapea watched.

At the conclusion of the visit Mr. Hutapea said what he had seen would form the basis of what should prove a highly interesting report on his return home.

Value of Boxing

(By WALTER R. THURN, North Battleford, Sask.)

No sport has received as much unfounded criticism as boxing has in the last two decades. No sport has been as badly misunderstood as boxing usually is.

It is commonly agreed among the exponents of this art, that no one can fully appreciate this, apparently cruel sport unless they have participated in it in some form; if only as a good fun. What appears to be ruthless abuse of the human body is simply a display of excellent physical condition and dexterity.

It is not a matter of abusing one another in the ring, but a test of skill and endurance. Seldom do we find boxers angry in the ring, and when this does happen it is extremely detrimental to the victim of this lack of control. On the contrary, opponents are more frequently on friendly terms, which is also frequently displayed in the match. There are few better tests of sportsmanship and self-control than a high calibre competition between two well-conditioned athletes. We seldom, if ever, see gross misconduct, or disregard for the rules in the ring, as is so common in many other games. Furthermore, when competitors are keyed up and anxious for victory one would expect the latter, but it never seems to result.

Not only does it teach great self-discipline and good sportsmanship in the ring but this is also found equally outside the ring. Good boxers never use their ability or advantage outside of the ring.

It is commonly said that, "anyone who boxes in a ring never fights outside it, and anyone constantly fighting outside the ring never goes to care to enter the ring." We may, however, not uncommonly find the boxer defending the right, or anyone at a disadvantage.

Let us look at another angle, training. This fine sport utilizes such a wide variety of training, that this itself is of the great value. Running, one of the most valuable and enjoyable exercises is frequently used in training; as is its equivalent—skipping. This fine conditioning lighter exercise may be varied in dozens of ways. No other exercise of equal value may be performed in such a small space as skipping, or with such a little equipment. One may skip in a basement, or on a porch, or even on a walk.

Other common conditioning exercises such as bag punching, limited weight lifting push ups, parallel bar or trapeze work are only a few of those commonly used.

Good physique and good health which invariably accompany this are themselves priceless human assets, not easily achieved, or readily lost.

For training, like most other regular practices soon becomes more or less habitual and thus of permanent value.

Only a well conditioned athlete knows the feeling and effect of training and will prize it for such. The above items are only a few of the innumerable advantages and uses of this manly art.

Start the season right

During the start of any new season of activity, the main thing to emphasize is eliminating the faults that were apparent the season before.

Unless you base your training on this principle right at the start you'll hang onto all your bad points during the coming season too. Right now, your mind and body are fresh. They're able to develop new habits to replace the old ones because the old habits have not been re-established. But if activity is started without any conscious attempt to develop new habits the old ones will return and the longer this continues the worse they will become.

Dean Cromwell, famous U.S. coach, wrote: The athlete should try to work up to a set schedule, emphasizing his weaknesses at all times. Work should be done in front of your coach or another athlete who understands what you are trying to do, so they can advise you of your weaknesses. Remember, your weaknesses are more apparent to someone watching.

Make a list of the weaknesses you want to eliminate. Start to work on making the change right now. Start slowly, and train your mind and body to get the feel of the new way before the pressure goes on.

Post-game jitters

Do you have trouble relaxing and controlling your jitters after a hard practice or game? Here's a trick you can try.

Go for a long walk, concentrating on slow deep breathing. Do this as soon after the activity as possible. When you get home, take a hot bath. When you are in the tub, try to let all your muscles go as loose and limp as possible.

Finally, to ease your mind regarding what you should or shouldn't have done, write down any lessons you think you have learned, and any regulations you may have about the next game.

These are all tried and true methods of eliminating the strain of fatigue and of easing nervous tension.

KINDNESS

I have been reading about the lives of the saints, and I notice one quality common to them all, and source of their greatest happiness. Without exception, they were kindly. An infinite tenderness seemed to have opened their hearts to all — even to their enemies. In the midst of personal difficulties, they were still filled with love for others.

Reading these things, I began to realize that I know a few saintly people after all. At least they have this quality of kindness in abundance, and that is a sure sign of saintliness. This has come as a greater surprise to me, because the men and women I refer to have a trace of what is often referred to as 'divinity' in them; but they were kindly folk, often over-generous, the kind that would give you their shirt, if you were in real need.

I wonder if the saints would have gotten such inner peace from their kindness, if it had been forced on them as a civic duty. I doubt it. I think they'd have felt the way the free-lance writer, Don Herold felt when he wrote: "I'd like to have enough money to give away to the right people and causes — of my own choosing. I'm tired of having politicians being so thoughtful and generous with my dough."

Kindness is a human passion of great worth, according to William James, the dean of psychology. He says: "Given a certain amount of love, generosity, magnanimity, the result is always the same. Cowardly obstructions, which in tame persons and dull moods are sovereign impediments to action, sink away at once. Our conventionality, our shyness, laziness and stinginess, our demands for precedent and permission, for guarantee and surety, our small suspicions, timidity, despairs, where are they now? Severed like cobwebs, broken like bubbles in the sun! The flood we are borne on rolls them so lightly under that their very contact is unfelt. Set free of them, we float and soar and sing. This auroral openness and uplift gives to all creative ideal levels a bright and caroling quality, which is nowhere more marked than where the controlling emotion is religious."

Yes, kindness is a passion with delightful fruits, particularly when it has a religious connotation. Surely, it is too precious a passion to be relinquished to politicians. Churchmen, I think, make a mistake, indeed — when they ask governments to administer kindness.

LIFE'S FABRIC

He told me about it as we rode together on the train from the small town where he was born to the big city where he worked. He'd been called out home because his mother, at 81, suffered a severe stroke, and he had watched her fighting for her life.

"As I watched her," he said, "I kept thinking of her as a little girl, Sally May Jones, walking miles and miles to school, then home to milk the cows and do so many chores. It is only when the end seems near that one becomes so concerned about the beginnings. I thought of her marriage, and the struggle to raise a family, and all the dreams she must have had in those days. And I wondered what regrets must be in her mind now, with the end threatening and many of the dreams unfulfilled."

"We were at her bedside at the little hospital — her three sons — and I suppose we were all wondering the same thing. Then we noticed that she was trying to tell us something, although paralysis had made speech difficult for her. We leaned forward anxiously, and finally we were able to understand."

"She was trying desperately hard to tell us that at home we would find oatmeal cookies in the earthenware crock in the cupboard, and that there was meat cooked and ready to eat. 'Bring up a sealer of fruit from the basement . . . anything you like,' she said."

He told me that it took them back somewhat to thing that at this hour, when they thought her every energy was devoted to her fight for life, that instead, her mind was on supper for her boys. Her life had taught her that the mind is best occupied with the small everyday things that form the fabric of a good life — the oatmeal cookies and suppers for the boys. The dreams lose substance, but these daily things are real and immediate and important.

She is recovering from her stroke, he says and should still have some summers in the sun, to sit and look back. Not to dream of what might have been, but to savour the countless things that really were. Gardens planted, meals served, a useful life fully lived, and many sorrows and difficulties met courageously. Little Sally May Jones had much that was worthwhile to look back upon.

ADVERTISING

I've seen a bank manager reform and he has done his town a lot of good. Here's how it happened.

The editor of a fine little weekly paper wasn't having too much luck. Merchants in his town were pretty conservative about advertising, especially when business was slow. Apparently, the bank manager in that town gave a lot of advice. He'd been telling those merchants, who were short of cash, to cut expenses — particularly their advertising. Quite a few merchants followed the advice.

Then the manager got instructions from head office to put up a sign they sent him about money orders and traveller's cheques. They also sent an advertisement to the paper. The bank manager thought it foolish, because "there's not much call for those services here."

Much to his surprise, the sign and the advertisement increased business. People who had been going to the city with cash in their pockets started using traveller's cheques instead.

Next time a merchant found business slow the banker changed his advice. "Why not run a sale," he suggested. "Put an ad in the paper and a sign in the window." His advice was followed and business picked up.

Today that weekly is no longer little. It has plenty of circulation and much more business. It is enlarging the trading area of the town, and it's bringing shoppers in to the town to the point where parking is a problem.

Not all bank managers reform as fast as this one. I'd suggest to the head offices of all banks that they educate their branch managers on the subject. Many small towns lose trade to nearby cities because the merchant's aren't advertising. Bankers contribute to this decline when they include advertising in their "cut expense" advice!

Notice To Dog Owners!

A number of dogs within the town are still without tags.

It is also noticed that a number of these dogs are still roaming the streets.

If these conditions are not rectified by April 30th, 1956, Police action will be taken.

Western Canadian Greyhound Lines Get Two Major Awards

Western Canadian Greyhound Lines captured the two major awards in the 1955 Greyhound National Safety Contest conducted among the companies' 13 divisions in the United States and Canada. Mr. R. L. Borden, president of Western Canadian Greyhound Lines, announced today.

The Western Canadian drivers captured the Marcus Dow trophy with a 56.5 gain in accident free miles. (The comparison is with the company's average of safe mileage for the three preceding years) and the William F. Grant Plaque for the best mileage-between-accident record.

These awards were made from the company headquarters in Chicago.

The Western Canadian drivers' records were made in driving more than 11,000,000 miles last year over 6458 miles of routes between Winnipeg and Vancouver. Throughout the entire system in the U.S. and Canada, drivers of the 6,100 buses showed a 19.8 percent improvement in accident-free mileage while driving 500,000,000 miles.

The Marcus Dow Trophy was named after a former Safety Director of the Greyhound Corporation who died in 1950. The trophy has been competed for since 1946.

The William F. Grant Plaque was put into competition in 1954 in honor of another Safety Director of Greyhound and a former president of the American Hockey Association and Kansas City Hockey Club.

The Western Canadian Greyhound Lines is the only division in Canada to have won the Marcus Dow Trophy previously, capturing it twice in the past ten years.

Western Canadian Greyhound Lines was started in 1929 by G. B. Fay, who retired last month. He was succeeded by Mr. Borden who has been with the organization for twenty years.

The Line started running a daily service with eight buses between Lethbridge, Calgary and Edmonton. Later they expanded to Fernie, B.C. and then Nelson. A progressive expansion program continued into Saskatchewan and Manitoba until the company now runs 120 stainless steel "Courier" buses.

No Official Surveys

Research council of Alberta officials said today there had been no official surveys in the foothills region in recent years though private companies are known to have made examinations of the area.

An earlier survey when the late Dr. John A. Allan was head of the department of geology at the University indicated the presence of titanium in the iron ore deposits in southwestern Alberta. This was regarded as detrimental to mining possibilities. Now it is claimed that a new process has been developed in the U.S. which ensures successful mining though the ore contains titanium.

Settle Water Dispute

Canada has offered to try to negotiate a new agreement about sharing waterways on rivers which cross the Canada-U.S. border, reports The Financial Post.

Most important question at stake is the Columbia River, and the Canadian suggestions for diverting much of its flow through the Fraser River so that the full flow would never reach the big series of power-dams on the U.S. Columbia.

Bitter opposition to any such diversion has been expressed in the U.S. Governor Jordan, chairman of the U.S. Section of the International Joint Commission, has said that it would do serious injury to the United States; and a principal Democratic spokesman, Senator Neuberger, has said that the proposed diversion would mean "life difference between economic progress and stagnation" in the states of the Pacific Northwest.

Canada's new proposal for negotiations, put to President Eisenhower by Mr. St. Laurent at the recent private talks at White Sulphur Springs, would mean shifting the long dispute about the Columbia from the International Joint Commission, where General A. G. L. McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian Section, and Governor Jordan have been exchanging a long series of uncompromising public statements.

It would substitute private bargaining behind closed doors between accredited representatives to the two governments.

A beautiful spring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, March 31st at the Bellevue United church with the Reverend Ray Chubb uniting in marriage Jeanette Marie, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fauville and Frederick Martin, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Baker all of Bellevue. The double ring ceremony was held at 3 p.m.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was radiant in a wall-length formal gown of white flowered lace with nylon fan pleated bouffant skirt worn over a crinoline. The strapless top featured a short lace bolero with wrist length lily-point sleeves.

Her finger tip veil of illusion net misted from a rhinestone and mother of pearl and sequin tiara. She wore an heirloom necklace given to her several years ago by her grand mother.

The groom's gift was an Eastern Star ring. The bride was a member of this Order. She carried red roses in colonial bouquet with white satin streamers.

The three attendants wore ball-length semi-formal gowns and carried colonial bouquets of pink and white carnations and white streamers. The attendants were, Miss J. Goodwin wearing mauve, Mrs. Marion Fauville, cousin of the bride in pink and Miss Blanche Bauer, sister of the groom in yellow. They all wore flowered headresses.

James Wright and Lyle Harvey ushered the guests. The groom was supported by Wallace Fauville, brother of the bride, John Cole and Frank Ingram of Fernie. The Job's Daughters, of which order the bride is a member and a Past Honored Queen, entered the church first followed by the bridesmaids. The bride followed on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. William Marcolin.

The Daughters accompanied by Miss Mary Marcolin on the piano then sang "Bless This House". During the signing of the Register they sang "Oh Perfect Love."

The bride and groom proceeded down the aisle under an arch of cedar boughs held by the members of the Order. The attendants and the Daughters then followed.

With the bridal party at a reception held in the Catholic Hall the bride's mother received the guests wearing a navy blue nylon lace frock with light grey coat and white accessories. The groom's mother wore a light grey suit with white accessories. Each wore a pink rose corsage.

Some 200 relatives and friends sat down to a turkey supper at a beautifully decorated table, centered with a four tiered wedding cake. The hall was beautifully decorated with purple and white streamers and spring flowers.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Roy Chubb who acted as Master of Ceremonies and was suitably replied to by the groom and best man. Wallace Fauville was in charge of the guest books where out-of-town guests registered from: Billings, Montana, Taber, Calgary, Cowley, Blairmore, Coleman, Natal, Fernie, Galloway, Elk Valley, Trail, Ellensburg and Cleburn, Washington.

The young couple will leave shortly for a honeymoon to be spent in visiting U.S. points. On their return they will reside in Elk Valley where the groom is employed.

Scintillating sidelights

Those who should know maintain that bobbed-hair and similar short clipped type hair-dos make a woman's head look smaller. And that the smaller a woman's head appears, the younger she looks... Of all participants in amateur sport, fishermen spend the most money for equipment. It is said that fishing enthusiasts buy one-fourth of all types of sporting equipment sold in the U.S. The term "bedside manner" as applied to physicians is not of modern origin. Over 2,400 years ago, Hippocrates "the father of medicine" wrote: "A doctor must have a good bedside manner and must be calm and equable even when those around him are agitated and excited." The following expressions, considered by many to be examples of modern slang, are all found in the works of Shakespeare: "Done me wrong", "She falls for it", "Not so hot", and "Beat it".

Worship Blend

Such communal endeavor has been practiced at many times and in many places during the centuries since the church began.

An Adelin penguin, she's one of some 10,000 formally garbed inhabitants of the rookery on Ross Island in the Antarctic's McMurdo sound. A Navy photographer with the expedition preparing United States bases for participation in the forthcoming International Geophysical Year snapped this rare picture. ## OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY —

CONCENTRATION

—By CLAIRE LAVAL

AND IN 1934 the advocates of protection passed the highest tariff bill in the history of the United States, the Hawley-Smoot. Mr. Robert Sullivan, the newest history instructor on the college teaching staff, was lecturing on tariffs.

As he spoke, Janet Laurin appeared to be drinking in his every word. Her eyes followed him as he moved from his desk, to the window, to the board and back to his desk again. But Janet wasn't concentrating at all. She was merely day dreaming — wondering, in fact, how Mr. Sullivan could combine a football-hero build with such a brilliant mind. Certainly men like that weren't plentiful. Mr. Sullivan paused in his speech and looked directly at Janet.

"Miss Laurin, would you please tell us the provisions of the Smoot-Hawley tariff-bill?"

Janet was caught completely unawares. She didn't even hear the question. "I-I-I'm afraid I didn't hear the question." She was so embarrassed that she stuttered.

Robert Sullivan looked at her thoughtfully, an eyebrow raised. "I'm afraid, Miss Laurin, that you haven't even heard a word I've said for the past fifteen minutes. I know, this is the third time this week that you've missed a question."

Janet's face flamed. She could feel the other students looking at her and smiling. "I'm sorry," she said, and slumped down in her chair. She wished the floor would open up and swallow her. The third time in one week that she had missed a question! She must be making a terrible impression on Bob—that was the way she thought of Mr. Sullivan—Bob. Right now, Mr. Sullivan was smiling in the direction of Jill Fischer. Suppose you tell us the provisions of the Smoot-Hawley bill, Jill—I mean, Miss Fischer."

Jill smiled confidently, tossed her golden page boy off one shoulder, and answered correctly. Janet glared at her with envy and dislike. Envy because of her easy relationship with Bob, dislike because she answered correctly. Everyone knew that Jill had already been out with Robert Sullivan and when Jill went out with someone, nobody else had a chance. Tall, slender, glamorous, Jill was the kind of girl any man was proud to be seen with. No doubt, she had Robert Sullivan pretty tucked away under her wing.

Janet sat miserably through the rest of the lecture, thinking of Bob and Jill and paying no attention whatsoever. When the bell rang, she jumped to her feet with a sigh of relief. She felt she couldn't get out of the classroom fast enough. As she reached the door, however, almost escaping, she heard Mr. Sullivan call her.

"Janet Laurin, would you come here for a moment, please?" Janet stopped in her tracks. She was almost tempted to keep right on going, but she couldn't very well say she didn't hear that booming voice. She turned and walked back toward the desk.

"Miss Laurin," he said, "I'd like to see you in my office this afternoon after classes, say about five o'clock. Would that be convenient?" He was smiling at her and his blue eyes were twinkling.

"He probably finds my stupidity amusing," thought Janet, but she couldn't resist smiling back at him. "Yes, that would be convenient."

ent," she said. "Good," said Mr. Sullivan, "then we can have a little talk about your work. I'll see you then."

"Yes, Mr. Sullivan," said Janet and turned to leave. Then she noticed that Jill, too, had remained in the classroom. Possibly to discuss a history question with Robert Sullivan, but more probably to make a date. For a minute Janet hated Jill with all her heart and soul.

But she soon forgot about her as she turned her mind to the appointment with Bob at five. Perhaps it would be a good idea to go back to the dorm and put on a more attractive dress. After all, it wouldn't do any harm to try to make a good impression with the help of a little glamour. But then, probably all he wanted to tell her was that he was going to fail her in the mid-term exams.

Nevertheless, she changed her dress, put on fresh make-up, and her favorite perfume, and promptly at five, she entered Robert's office. He was sitting with his long legs propped up on his desk and immediately brought them down when she came in.

"I see you're prompt, Miss Laurin," said Robert Sullivan as he pulled up a chair for her. Janet thanked him, smiled her best smile and tried to toss her hair like Jill did, but it didn't work, her hair wasn't long enough. Mr. Sullivan was leaning against his desk, looking very professional.

"Miss Laurin," he began, "I've been studying your work in my class lately, and I've come to some conclusions that I thought we should discuss."

Janet felt her stomach sink. This is it, she thought. The perfume, the make-up, the dress, all for naught. Now he'll break it to me gently that he finds my work unsatisfactory and that he'll have to fail me. But all she said was, "Of course, Mr. Sullivan."

Mr. Sullivan folded his arms across his chest and continued. "So far, Janet, I've given the class two tests and in both of them you've done quite well. You made B, I believe. You seem to know the material. When I call on you in class, however, you never seem to be able to answer correctly or even at all."

Janet's heart skipped a beat—he had called her Janet! How pretty her name sounded. Janet and Robert, Robert and Janet or better still—Bob and Janet. She turned the words over in her mind. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sullivan didn't sound so bad either. She smiled a little at her thoughts while Robert Sullivan spoke on.

"So with this evidence in hand, Janet Laurin, I've come to the conclusion that you're in love." Janet started from her reverie, her eyes widening. "Why, Bob, I haven't told a soul about it except—" She stopped suddenly, clapping her hand over her mouth. "Oh, I didn't mean to say that," she whispered.

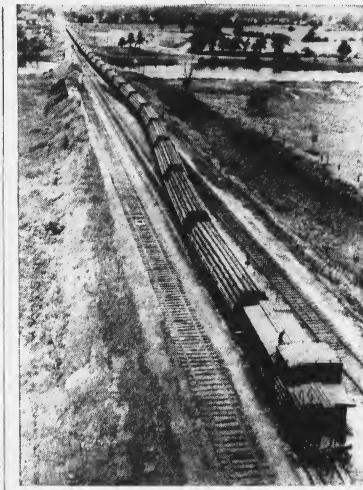

Bob frowned a little. "Am I correct in assuming that your inattentiveness during lecture hours is due to love and not stupidity?"

"Yes, I suppose it is," she said, softly.

"Am I also correct in assuming that during my classes you are thinking about the way he looks, the way he moves his hands when he talks, the way his lips has a trick of sliding over to one side and also wondering what it is the world he sees in Jill?"

By this time, Bob was standing over her. Janet looked up into his face. She was so overwhelmed she could hardly speak.

"Bob, how—how did you know?" I haven't breathed a word

Tanganyika elephants holding their own despite slaughter

Six elephants are shot every day in Tanganyika, according to the latest report of the game warden, and over the last five years the deaths have averaged 2,230, states a story in the Manchester Guardian.

But in spite of this slaughter the Tanganyika elephants are reported to be in good form and more than holding their own. A herd of them recently destroyed 2,000 coconut trees at Gombe, appearing to dislike the labors of the agriculture department, which is trying to build up a coconut industry.

Elephants and cars also appear to be mutually attractive along the Tanganyika roads. One party which climbed the Ngurdoto crater in the Mount Meru game reserve returned to find an elephant calf rubbing its back on the car. The calf's mother also arrived, attended by four other elephants, and the elders set up a tremendous trumpeting of warnings to the calf. The visitors retreated down the road and at a distance watched the family remove the calf from the car's charm into the forest.

Notable escape
A young African had the most notable escape of the year from being crushed by an elephant. He was chased by a bull elephant across an open plowed strip when he tripped in his blanket and fell headlong.

The white blanket attracted the to anyone except my roommate. Bob's face was very close to hers, his eyes twinkling, his lips smiling. "It may be because I'm clairvoyant," he said, "or it may be because I've become very attracted to you, too."

And suddenly, unbelievably, Bob was kissing her. Then just as suddenly, Janet pushed him away. She jumped to her feet.

"Just a minute Mr. Sullivan! What about Jill? It seems to me that you and that young lady are rather close. You won't be able to give Jill the brush-off so easily."

Bob was laughing. "Jill, my dear, doesn't need a brush-off. She's my oldest sister's daughter. That's why we're so close."

"Your niece! Janet's tone was incredulous. "Bob, not really! I'm so glad."

Bob's hand was beneath her chin. "That's the truth. And now do you think you'll be able to concentrate in class?"

Janet couldn't help smiling. "Concentrate on what, sir?"

Higher farm income reported by Manitoba in 1955 than 1954

The steady downward trend that has marked the net returns per farm in Manitoba since the peak year of 1951 was reversed in 1955, it is indicated in the 1955 report of the Department of Agriculture and Immigration.

Better yields in all crops helped to increase the income per farm by $140 above that of the year 1954, with the average for Manitoba's 52,000 farms estimated at $3,970. The 1951 average was $5,393.

The increase in value of production was reflected in all branches of farming except wool, garden products and clover and grass seed.

Dairy products, at an estimated $24,819,000, were highest since 1949 and poultry products reached a record-breaking $22,347,000. Fur farming also reached a record peak of $3 million and, in spite of serious delays last spring in delivery of packing bees, honey production surpassed a 25-year average.

The major source of farm income, field crops, was up by more than $1 million over the 1954 value, totalling an estimated $99,776,000. Value of farm animal production rose by $160,000 to an estimated $48,371,000.

Garden products were down by more than $1 million from the previous year but, at $6,595,000, the total value was second highest in post-war years.

Clover and grass seed dropped sharply from over one million dollars in 1954 to $567,000 in 1955.

Weather conditions during the seeding and growing periods of 1955 were detrimental to the growing of grains and special crops. In addition to flood conditions in the spring and excessive heat during the summer, the province experienced a widespread and severe infestation of aphids.

Rust failed to develop to the point of damaging other than a small acreage of durum wheat and some late oats. Hay losses were lighter than for some years.

Except for sugar beets, the acreage to special crops was lower than in the year previous due mainly to unfavorable planting conditions.

'Navy Rat Virus' is long-lived

A discovery made recently at the University of Michigan has revealed a circumstance hitherto unsuspected in the field of bacteriology. Certain assertions regarding viruses can, more or less, be taken as indisputable.

It is a well-known fact that nearly all of these microscopic organisms will live only a few weeks at most after being removed from the living host cell, and there are many different kinds known to science.

However, while cleaning up an old laboratory, a test tube with living virus in it was found which had been there for 35 years!

There is no doubt about the potency of this new discovery. Rats inoculated with one ten-billionth of a drop, containing the virus, survived only a few hours.

This virus was first made known to science in 1909 by Dr. Frederick G. Novy, and the test tube in which the long-lived sample was found was in a laboratory formerly used by one of his assistants.

Therefore, it will be appropriately named the "Navy Rat Virus."

Funny and Otherwise

A farmer was driving past the insane asylum with a truck load of fertilizer. An inmate called out:

"Hey! What are you hauling there?"

"Fertilizer," the farmer called back.

"What are you going to do with it?"

"Put it on my strawberries."

The inmate turned around to his room-mate and said: "Huh! We put cream and sugar on ours, and they call us crazy!"

If you earn $4,000.00 a year and your wife earns nothing, she's a dependent. But if your wife earns $4,000.00 a year and you earn nothing, you're a bum.

A hard-driving taxi driver ignored a red signal, threatened the traffic policeman's knees, missed the street island by a hair, and grazed a bus, all in one dash.

The policeman hailed him, then stroled over to the taxi, pulling a big handkerchief from his pocket en route.

Policeman — Listen, cowboy! On the way back I'll drop this and see if you can pick it up with your teeth.

Doctor: "Now take a deep breath and say nine, three times."

Willie (after inhaling): "Twenty-seven."
